

Super Tuscan

From charming trattorias to furniture finds, Edgardo Osorio shares his Florence favorites.

TOP LEFT: BELMOND HOTEL'S VILLA SAN MICHELE. BELOW: ONE OF THE VILLA'S GUEST ROOMS.

Stay

In town, Osorio recommends booking a hotel near the Arno River in order to best see the city on foot. Portrait Firenze and the Hotel Lungarno both offer rooms with river views, while the Four Seasons has an 11-acre garden and “probably the nicest brunch in Florence.” For a weekend in the countryside, Belmond Hotel's Villa San Michele is “like a dream,” Osorio says.

Eat

“My canteen is Trattoria Cammillo—I normally eat there once a week,” says Osorio of the homey standby for no-frills Tuscan food that is always teeming with locals. For oenophiles, the designer recommends Cantinetta Antinori, owned by the legendary wine-making family of the same name.

Shop

For midcentury and modern furniture, Osorio can't get enough of Flair, which is near the Aquazzura boutique on Lungarno Corsini. And if it's design inspiration you're looking for, he recommends Palazzo Strozzi for contemporary exhibitions, and the Museo Stibbert, which was home to a 19th-century collector. “You're basically walking into a time capsule,” Osorio says.